II.1.4) Short description of the contract or purchase(s)

In order to efficiently and effectively manage its distributed data centres, the ECB is looking at the acquisition of a modular data centre infrastructure management system (DCIM system). The system is primarily required, to deal, in a holistic manner, with space and rack management, power monitoring and management, cabling documentation — management, activity planning (add, move and changes, what if simulation, activity lists), capacity planning, reporting and statistics.

Furthermore, the ECB needs to equip its data centres and technical rooms with a set of devices commonly used to access IT components for out-of-band management/administration purposes. These devices are expected to be managed by a common platform management tool which must permit centralised management and offer a central point of access.
